Royal Court ($3,000): refers to honored members of a krewe. This usually includes a king, queen, grand marshals, dukes, maids and more. Court members are often presented during the parade's ball in an elaborate fashion. These are coveted positions, and there are often years-long waiting lists to become a king or queen.

2nd Line Band ($1,000): There are two parts to a 2nd line. The first line is the grand marshal, the band, and whoever is being honored. The strutting revelers who fall in behind are referred to as the second line. The leaders of the parade carry decorated umbrellas, while the other participants shake handkerchiefs while they dance to the music the brass band plays.

King Cake ($700): a festive cake made of Danish dough, cinnamon, glaze topping, colorful sprinkles, complete with a plastic baby figurine. The baby is meant to represent Jesus and commemorates the Christian holiday Epiphany.

Fat Tuesday ($500): Mardi Gras is French for "Fat Tuesday", reflecting the practice of the last night of eating rich, fatty foods before Lent commences and the fasting of the Lenten season.

French Quarter ($300): a historic New Orleans neighborhood bursting with charm, known for its colorful architecture, lively music scene, and vibrant street life.

Beignets ($150): a delectable, pillowy pastry that embodies the vibrant culinary culture of New Orleans. These deep fried squares of dough are dusted with powdered sugar, and are served piping hot at the iconic Cafe' du Monde in the French Quarter.
